MARRIAGE.

On Saturday, the 27th June, at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Singapore, by the Revd. J. Perham, JULIE MELCHIORRE FABRIS, youngest son of the late Antonio Melchiorre Fabris of Springcreek, Beckenham, Kent, to ROSAMOND MARY, eldest daughter of Alexander Wright, Planter, Pundarik, S. E. Wyndham, India.

The Hongkong Telegraph.

HONGKONG, FRIDAY, JULY 10, 1891.

TELEGRAMS.

MORE ABOUT THE KAISER.

LONDON, July 8th.
The Emperor of Germany was given a grand banquet at Windsor, Lord Salisbury and other notables being present.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

A PUBLIC meeting is to be held next Wednesday
to consider the establishment of a Chinese Cor-sulate here.

THREE mail steamers arrived here to-day—the Oceania from San Francisco, and the Chinglu and Guthrie from Australia.

THE Agents (Messrs. Dowell, Carill & Co.)
inform us that the steamship Linnor left Singapore for this port this afternoon, and is due on the 16th inst.

A "SPECIAL message" to the Sydney press states that the mission premises in Hongkong have been burned by native rioters, and two people killed. Has anybody heard of it?

ALTHOUGH Banks have received a few points the Rialto was showing signs of uneasiness activity
this morning. "Wares and China Sugars"
were active; and it is reported that the latter stock will return an interim div. of 7 per cent.

THE 8th Regiment, which was so universally popular while stationed in Hongkong, is to leave Singapore for Ceylon at the end of the current year, or early in January '92. Judging from the good time the Regiment has had in Singapore it would seem that the gallant old "Steelbacks"
make friends wherever they go.

THE Nagsack Express says that very grave fears are being entertained by the Japanese for the rice crop now being planted out, as the rainy season, which usually commences before the middle of June, has not yet set in there. An almost constant downpour of rain for three or four weeks is not by any means pleasant, but it is indispensable for the rice crop, and we trust it will come before it is too late.

At the Magistracy this morning Chan Shing and Li Lok were charged with retailing beer on board the steamship Oceania without a licence. A constable saw them selling beer to the crewmen.
They had eighteen bottles of beer with them,
which they were selling at twenty cents per bottle. The second defendant, who was only a coolie employed by the other, was discharged, but the first was fined $10, or one month's imprisonment.

THE "Japs" are still well forward in the van of civilization. Mr. W. A. Foster, who lately brought over some horses to Japan from Vancouver, while attending some races at Hirunuma on the 28th inst. was relieved of his gold watch, valued at $250, by a pickpocket, while in the middle of a crowd who had congregated round a "wheel of fortune" which was being run there. The thief was evidently an expert at the business, for he left the chain in the gentleman's pocket.

SIR CHARLES WARREN'S notoriety is still in the ascendant. A servant in his employ was brought up before the Third Magistrate at Singapore on the 30th ult. charged with carrying his master's fowling-piece on Orchard Road without a permit. The Court directed him to obtain a licence forthwith. Now had this incident occurred in another place that we not of the "Bobby" who dared prefer the charge
would have been the recipient of a reprimand.

As the Telegraph was issued at 5.30 p.m.
yesterday the rumoured result of the weekly meeting of the Directors of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation reached us too late for publication. It is reported that the Directors have decided to pay a dividend of thirty shillings per share for the half year, but to enable them to do this twelve lakhs of dollars will have to be withdrawn from the reserve fund.
The local branch of the bank is credited with having earned a sufficient sum, had not outside losses to be considered, to pay a dividend at the rate of 2 per cent. It is also said that all had and doubtful debts have been written off,
so that the Bank will now start with a "clean sheet."

THE Kobi Herald learns that some of the principal Japanese residents of Kobe-Hyogo have awakened to the necessity of a better and more wholesome water supply. As we pointed out some time ago, the cholera fad does not always discriminate between the rich and the very indigent when seeking victims; and it cannot be denied that although Nature has done her best for this district of Hyogo, yet man has done himself culpably negligent in making free use of what she has so bountifully supplied. Kobe-Hyogo should be the Sanatorium, in the truest sense, of this part of Japan. Its healthful situation will place it pre-eminent as such if, to the natural advantages it enjoys, the blessings of a pure water supply and an efficient system of drainage
be secured.

and Langkat Tobacco Co. has just declared a dividend than in 1889, 47 per cent. less than in 1888, and 45 per cent. less than in 1887—the result of the competition of native opium, especially of Kweichow, which resembles the foreign drug in taste, and is much cheaper. The approximate retail prices of the foreign drug are: old Malwa, Tls. 712; new Malwa, Tls. 640; Patna, Tls. 416; new boiled Patna, Tls. 1,168; old boiled Patna, Tls. 1,500.

Reliable statistics of its quantity cannot be obtained, but the following are the different kinds for sale, with the approximate retail price per picul: Yunnan, Tls. 344; Kweichow, Tls. 425; Szechwan, Tls. 304; Shensi, Tls. 278; Honan, Tls. 249; Hupai, Tls. 211. Of the last named very little is produced, for it is very strong and the demand is limited.

One well-known native bank, the Yuan Feng Chiu, has gone into liquidation in consequence of losses sustained by the failure of a large tea hong in Hanchow, which they have not been able to make up, and a few small failures are reported; but on the whole the year was a much better one all round for the native merchants than 1889.

AUCKLAND, June 26th.

News from Samoa to-day states that a feeling of great uneasiness prevails at Apia, and that a native outbreak is feared. This is owing to the action of Mataafa, who on May 31 suddenly left Apia and, escorted by a body-guard of 20 natives, proceeded to Malle, where he intends to reside. Malle is the centre of political life amongst the Samoans, and Mataafa's going there is regarded as a sign that he intends to raise the standard of rebellion. On the same day two chiefs of Malle, who were serving sentences for sedition, escaped from prison, and placed themselves under his protection. The authorities sent policemen to effect their re-arrest without success. Tofa, a powerful chief, a friend of Mataafa's, then went, but only with a like result. The King, Chief Justice, President and the three consuls then held a meeting, when it was decided that the President and the consuls should go to Malle and interview Mataafa. This they did, and urged him to return to Apia and avoid doing anything likely to provoke war. Mataafa, in reply, said he had resolved to live at Malle at the request of the Samoans, but he would go to Apia and see the King, who had promised him that the Malle chiefs would be liberated. The President said the King had denied having made such a promise. Next day Mataafa met the King, and exhorted him to keep his promise. He said he would use his influence to preserve peace, and that his sole object was the good of Samoa. The following day Mataafa returned to Malle, and sent the prisoners back to Apia. It is stated that during the interview Mataafa told the King that, while the latter was King recognized by the three Powers, he (Mataafa) was King of the Samoans.

A letter received from Mrs. French Sheldon indicates that she finds her expedition to the interior of Africa a far more serious and expensive undertaking than she expected. This letter was dated April 15th, from Tetla, which is about nine days from the coast. It was conveyed to Mombassa by a native messenger.

When Mrs. Sheldon arrived at Zanibar she endeavored to engage fifty porters to carry her palanquin and baggage up the country. The porters refused to go unless accompanied by at least seventy armed men.

The Sultan gave Mrs. Sheldon a personal interview and expressed the deepest interest in her undertaking. He also rendered assistance in overcoming obstacles which at first seemed almost insurmountable.

Mrs. Sheldon finally started from Mombassa with one hundred men, half of whom were armed with such weapons of warfare as she could purchase along the coast. She reached Tetla in good health, without very serious mishaps or quarrels among the men, though she had found it necessary during the most difficult part of the journey to march at the head of her expedition instead of riding in her palanquin.

This letter had scarcely arrived in London when a cable from the British East Africa Company was received, saying Mrs. Sheldon had safely reached Kilimanjaro, 300 miles from the coast. She spent three weeks there, and was returning home through German territory by way of Fargany. This indicates that she has had no trouble in crossing the frontier from British into German dominions.

Before starting this was one of Mrs. Sheldon's most serious apprehensions. She was afraid to ask permission of the German Foreign Office at Berlin, for fear that should be refused, preferring to take her chances with the petty officers of the German Government on the German frontier.

It does not seem probable now that Mrs. Sheldon will reach civilization again before August. In her letter Mrs. Sheldon briefly refers to her visit to the Sultan's harem. She says she has been all she expected (July 2nd 1891).

Milan, ex-King of Servia, has pondered to the fickle goddess fortune, and she has turned her back upon him as definitely as her ex-Majesty Natalie did when she learned that royal blood had sought companionship in plebeian homes.

Milan has been playing in bad luck this week. He had started well, for he had taken something like $30,000 from his boon companions. This seemed to embolden him; it was a bait to his gambling ambition. On Thursday a big game, it is said, was started at the Royal Club. Men with millions were in it, and with a slight intermission for refreshments and sleep the play went on until about 8 o'clock this morning, when, it is claimed, the ex-King arose a loser of $30,000.

In his address to the spring recruits of the army the Emperor William said: "I warn you, who are mostly young countrymen, against the social democrats. Always remember the oath you have taken binds you to me. The Bible says that the girl who marries, leaves father and mother, and follows her husband. I say to you, having taken the oath of a soldier you must follow me implicitly, shooting even your father or brother without question or hesitation when ordered." This language startled even the young members to whom it was addressed, but it was received with loyal outbursts of cheer.

NEW YORK, June 8th.

Advices from Porto-Principe of June 1st, says: The massacre of St. Bartholomew has been reproduced here lately. There have been rumors that a revolution against Hippolyte was imminent, and these having reached his ears he caused the arrest of about eighty suspected persons. Among them was General Sully, who hid himself when informed that he was wanted; failing to secure him, his wife was taken instead and thrown into prison.

An outbreak occurred on May 23d. A former Cabinet Minister, at the head of a band of well-armed followers, stormed the prison and released 200 prisoners, who were provided with arms, and when Hippolyte's troops arrived there was a bloody battle. The rebels were routed, and the leaders shot at once. By nightfall forty men had been put to death. Others were captured and shot on the three following days. It is estimated that from May 23th to June 1st, 300 persons have been put to death.

LONDON, June 8th.

When the trial of the baccarat scandal case was resumed to-day Solicitor-General Sir Edward Clarke, leading counsel for plaintiff, took the floor, and tersely invited the attention of the jury. He then commenced by saying it had been "common talk" that the Prince of Wales' continual presence in court during the trial of this suit had been for the purpose of restraining the tongues of the lawyers engaged in the case from commenting upon the Prince of Wales' connection with it. This remark caused sensation, but it was nothing to what followed. Continuing, Sir Edward intimated that the presence of the Prince of Wales in court would not prevent him from making any comment necessary, saying that he as counsel had a painful duty to perform, and that he intended to perform it honestly and fairly. His opponents, he continued, had always been careful to allude to him (counsel for plaintiff) as "the Solicitor-General," and he added: "While I am proud of the title, I must remind the jury that I appear in this case simply as an English barrister, and I am obliged to disregard friendship and even my own interests and comment on the conduct and evidence of one of the 'big' set in the land."

Sir Edward Clarke, as he uttered these words, turned squarely around until he faced the Prince of Wales, upon whom every eye in the court was then fixed, and who nervously crossed his legs, while the audience was utterly agitated at what was considered to be the audacity of the Solicitor-General. In several directions the whispering commenced: "Why, he is going to attack the Prince of Wales!" It was distinctly heard, and caused all attention to be riveted upon plaintiff's counsel.

Continuing, the Solicitor-General remarked that Sir Charles Russell, for the defendants had said that "even if the jury found for the plaintiff and disregarded the document the latter had signed at Tranby Croft, the military authorities would take the matter up, and Sir William Gordon-Cumming's name would be stricken from the army list." I wish to be in unmistakable terms," exclaimed Sir Edward Clarke, raising his voice until it echoed tellingly through the court-room. "That it would be impossible for the authorities to do any such thing, and to leave on that list the names of the field marshal, the Prince of Wales, and General Owen Williams.

The bold statement seemed to completely take away the breath of the audience, and caused by far the greatest sensation of the entire trial. A hushed murmur of astonishment, not unminged with dismay and some irritation, swept over the courtroom. One must thoroughly understand the almost religious worship of royalty which prevails throughout Great Britain to clearly understand the full meaning of the crushing significance of the Solicitor-General's words, aimed directly at the help-apparent.

Amid this storm the Prince of Wales sat on the bench to the left of the Lord Chief Justice, not a muscle of his face apparently twitching, leaning his head upon his arm and endeavoring to appear totally unconcerned.

"What was Sir William Gordon-Cumming's reason for signing the document about which so much has been said?" asked the Solicitor-General, looking straight into the Prince of Wales' eyes. "It was," he said, "after an effective pause, 'to save the Prince of Wales.'"

"Among the mass of the people," Sir Edward continued, "uttering each word with startling distinctness, 'it is known that a club or inn could be prosecuted for playing baccarat, and in a great part of the community there was a feeling that this unhappy incident ought never to be allowed to become known, because the circumstances were those which were at variance with the feeling and conscience of the people.'"

"Then there was the strange and subtle influence of royalty," still more solemnly and dramatically said the Solicitor-General, "and Sir Wm. Gordon-Cumming's action in signing that document was due to the influence which has adorned history and which has made many knights do an unkindly and dishonorable deed to save their king, because they gave their honor as freely as they would have given their lives for the interests of the dynasty, or to conceal the foibles of a prince."

A slight ripple of applause, which was promptly suppressed, broke out in court as the eloquent jurist uttered these last words in a most touching and impressive manner.

The House of Commons formally passed the Behring Sea bill as received from the House of Lords to-day.

Before passage, Lord Salisbury moved an amendment, which was adopted, to the effect that "the Queen, by order in council, prohibits British ships from catching seals in Behring sea during the period limited by the order, or such part thereof as would be described in the order."

WASHINGTON, June 8th.

The Government has notified all agents of the seal islands, per steamer Rush, to stop the killing of seals by the North American Commercial Company when it has taken 7500, the number which the Administration, in correspondence with the British Government, for a close season made one of the conditions of the agreement.

GLASGOW, June 8th.

Seven thousand shipworkers at Clyde Bank went on a strike to-day in consequence of a 5 per cent reduction in their wages. The men decided to-night to resume work pending a conference.

LONDON, June 9th.

This was a day of sensations in the baccarat case. Gordon-Cumming, though the verdict was against him, was cheered as he left the court and cheered by the crowd in the Strand.

The defendants, who gained the verdict, were blessed so heartily that they remained in a private room until the crowd dispersed. Lord Coleridge's charge was read against Cumming. The court was packed as usual. The Prince of Wales was not present. He went to Ascot. Coleridge was very tiresome. He does not like elaborate summings up.

In the absence of any portion of the scandal being directly connected with the Prince of Wales, Lord Coleridge said he could not imagine how any harm could be done to monarchy, to the Prince or to anybody else.

The wound upon his charge with the following emphatic remarks: "I send you gentlemen of the jury, to do your duty, and adopting the noble words of a great man to this occasion when you pass your judgment upon Sir William Gordon-Cumming's honor I pray you to recollect your own."

When the jury returned everyone looked nervous, but Sir William received their verdict against him without any show of feeling. The spectators, however, hissed the announcement and renewed in louder tones their expressions of disapproval as the jury left their box.
